IRAN'S DIVIDE GROWING

NEW ARRESTS SHOW CLERICS SPLIT; VIOLENCE ESCALATES

Associated Press

TEHRAN Iran's government said Sunday it arrested the daughter and four other relatives of former President Hashemi Rafsanjani, one of the country's most powerful men, in a move that exposed a rift among the ruling Islamic clerics over the disputed presidential election.

State media also reported at least 10 more deaths, bringing the official toll for a week of confrontations to at least 17. State TV inside Iran said 10 were killed and 100 injured in clashes Saturday between demonstrators contesting the result of the June 12 election and black-clad police wielding truncheons, tear gas and water cannons.

Police and members of the Basij militia took up positions in the afternoon on major streets and squares, including the site of Saturday's clashes. There was no word on any new clashes Sunday, although after dark many people in Tehran went to their rooftops to shout "Death to the dictator" and "Allahu akbar," a common form of defiance in recent days.

State-run Press TV reported that Rafsanjani's eldest daughter, Faezeh Hashemi, and four other unidentified family members were arrested late Saturday. On Sunday evening, it said the four others had been released but that Hashemi remained in detention.

Last week, state TV showed images of Hashemi, 46, speaking to hundreds of supporters of opposition candidate Mir Hossein Mousavi. He alleges fraud in the recent election, which the government said President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad won.

After Hashemi's appearance, hard-line students gathered outside the Tehran prosecutor's office and accused her of treason, state radio reported.

The arrests are the strongest sign yet of a serious divide among Iran's ruling clerics.

Also Sunday, Parliament Speaker Ali Larijani said on state TV that the number of people questioning the election results was large and "this group should be respected and one should not mix this big population's account with a small group of rioters."

Underscoring how the protesters have become emboldened despite the regime's repeated and ominous warnings, witnesses said some shouted "Death to Khamenei!" at Saturday's demonstrations—another sign of once unthinkable challenges to the virtually limitless authority of the supreme leader.

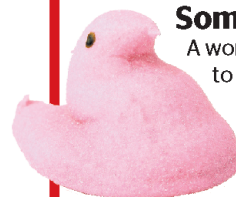

TRUTH POLICE

Iranian authorities have arrested at least 24 journalists and bloggers since postelection protests began a week ago, and a media watchdog says reporters are a "priority target" for Iran's leadership. Among those detained were the head of the Association of Iranian Journalists and a Canadian reporter for Newsweek. The British Broadcasting Corporation's correspondent has been ordered to leave the country.

Somebunny's suing

A woman from Boulder, Colo., is going to court claiming she was wrongly evicted from her apartment because she kept her Easter decorations on her door for two weeks after the holiday.

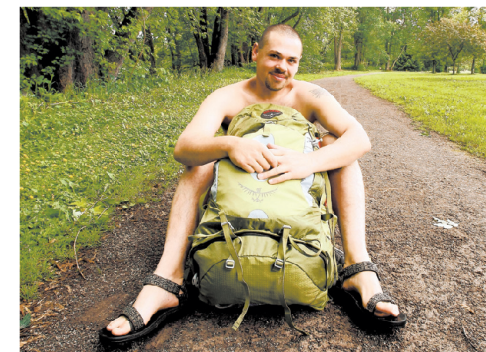

Carol Burdick claims her landlord unjustly told her to remove a display of Easter stickers, plastic grass, and Peeps marshmallow candies from her door a few days after the April 12 holiday this year.

"An Easter decoration is a religious statement and should be protected—even if it is just bunnies," said her attorney, John Pineau.

Orange crush

The borough of Lemoyne in Pennsylvania is raising an orange flag to make sure pedestrians get the right of way while crossing streets. There are now plastic bins filled with bright orange flags at two of its busiest intersections. A sign posted above each container reads "Use Flags While Crossing." Officials say people are supposed to take the flag, cross the street, and deposit it in a bin on the opposite side.

Lemoyne council member John Judson says the program is intended to make pedestrians more visible and to remind drivers that walkers have the right of way.

Andrew Williams poses at a park near his home in Warren, Pa. Williams planned to participate in Naked Hiking Day, on Sunday. AP

A-dressing controversy

Every year on the first day of summer, a few outdoor enthusiasts nationwide expose virtually all of themselves to insects, scrapes and thorns for the pleasure of bonding with nature au naturel.

They call it Naked Hiking Day.

But this year, the summer solstice falls on a weekend—this Sunday. Father's Day.

Hikers who prefer clothes are not happy.

Rangers and police all along the Appalachian Trail from Maine to Georgia, where the traditional is sometimes observed warn that people caught outdoors in the altogether could be charged with indecent exposure.

FACEBOOK BUZZ

<http://tr.im/fmail>

If you regularly use Facebook mail, which I affectionately call F-mail, you'll appreciate the great changes and upgrades Facebook has in store. According to Facebook's official blog, the company is "simplifying the inbox to make it easier for you to find, read and control your Facebook messages." Currently in testing, Facebook says you'll see the update over the next few weeks.

TWEET OF THE WEEK

(Contact me, Conan—I'm still willing to work with you)

Jeremy is taking me to a classy, upscale restaurant for lunch. Any of you ever heard of Wendys?

An extra helping of social networking

You're on Twitter and Facebook.

Now what?

You can friend, follow and update 24-7, but are you really getting the most out of your online time?

Here are five ways in the form of a few Web sites, applications and tools that can help make a good social networking experience great.

Tinker

Twitter.com shows you the top trending topics at any given moment, but what if you really want a clear visual of what people are tweeting about now? Tinker.com lets you choose or create your own event stream, where you can choose a keyword to watch and follow as the topic grows on Twitter.

Trendrr

Trendrr.com looks a little daunting when you first look at it, but it's the power that sets it apart. Think of it as hanging out with the cool kids, in that you can track how popular certain trends are online. And it goes way beyond Twitter and Facebook, monitoring videos, blogs, downloads and much more.

Spokeo

Spokeo, you had me at what you posted on your home page at spokeo.com: Want to see something juicy? Spokeo searches deep within 43 major social networks to find truly mouth-watering news about friends and co-workers. And if that's not cool enough, its humble beginnings can be traced back to a few Stanford students working in some guy's basement.

#twtbizcard

Business cards are so last year. Everything is online these days, and twtbizcard allows you to create a business card on Twitter that you can send to anyone. All you do is add #twtbizcard to an @reply and you are good to go. And check this out—you can create a branded card and you choose how much to pay for it.

Duo

There are countless ways to update your Facebook status and tweet when you aren't in front of a computer. A new app for the iPhone called Duo does a pretty good job making that task simple. It's nothing special to look at, but it does what it advertises well—it allows you to update your Twitter and Facebook. And it's free. Search for Duo in the iTunes App Store and check it out for yourself.

What's your favorite way to do more with social networking? Tweet me, poke me—just tell me. And be creative.

For some Chicagoans, enjoying multiple serious romances without cheating makes more sense than monogamy

By Alexia Elejalde-Ruiz

REDEYE

When Amul Kumar introduced himself to Joseph Prather at a science fiction convention three years ago, he said, by way of greeting: “I’m going to feed you shots so that I can make out with your wife later.”

To monogamous ears, those are fighting words. But Prather and his wife, Patricia Bennett, practice polyamory, a lifestyle that encourages cultivating multiple romantic relationships openly and honestly. Kumar and Bennett had already established chemistry, and both were game; Prather, though shocked at first by Kumar’s brazen proposal, accepted the invitation.

Today, Kumar, Prather and Bennett are in a relationship known in polyamory parlance as a “vee,” because the structure resembles the letter “V”: Bennett, representing the center point, is married to Prather and is dating Kumar, but Prather and Kumar are not romantically involved with each other (though they are close friends).

Unlike swingers, who swap or add partners to spice up their sex lives, polyamorists maintain multiple intimate relationships that are emotional as well as sexual—“swinging with breakfast,” some call it. The “vee” is one of many forms of polyamory, which, once you add hierarchies and outside partners, can begin to look like an extended family of lovers.

Prather, a 33-year-old truck driver, and Bennett, a 28-year-old airline reservationist, have the “primary” relationship and live together in Elk Grove Village. Kumar, a 33-year-old photographer, has his own apartment in Edgewater and is the “secondary” partner. All three of them can have additional relationships as they please—Bennett has a “tertiary” partner, who in turn has his own fiancé, and Kumar dates regularly as he searches for a primary partner of his own—but they’re bound by rules of conduct that hold them accountable to their trio.

Sound complicated? It can be. The relationships take work, scheduling is paramount and partners are not immune to jealousy. But for some people, enjoying multiple serious romances without cheating feels healthier than committing to one person for life—and society increasingly is taking notice.

Polyamory was a topic of discussion at the second annual Alternative Sexualities Conference at the Center on Halsted, held May 21, which was designed to help clinicians and researchers understand sexual subcultures. Though no statistics show the ranks of the polyamorous are increasing, anecdotally there seems to be growing awareness of and interest in the lifestyle, particularly among young adults, said Richard Sprott, executive director of the Berkeley-based Community-Academic Consortium for Research on Alternative Sexualities.

“Many people question if one person can fulfill all of their needs,” Sprott said. “They want to explore many parts of themselves and not put such a burden on one person. And they want to do it honestly, ethically, upfront.”

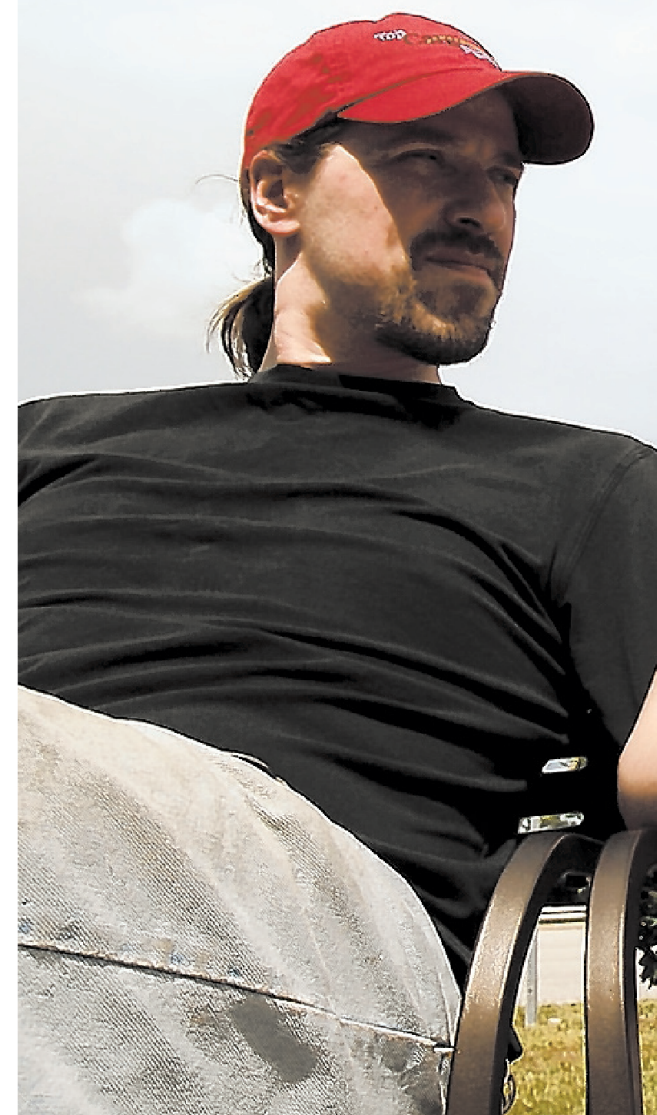

It’s not a topic to broach lightly, Sprott said. Telling your partner you want to try nonmonogamy “is a very powerful statement” that begets insecurities and, with the conversation alone, can change the nature of the relationship, he said.

Some therapists warn that polyamory at its core is unworkable.

People are hard-wired to want the security of connecting profoundly with one other person, said Josh Hetherington, a marital and family therapist with the Family Institute at Northwestern University. When a partner has additional intimate relationships, Patricia Bennett is married to Joseph Prather (left). Beyond their marriage however, Bennett has a romantic relationship with Amul Kumar (right).

BRIAN J. MOROWCZYNSKI FOR REDEYE

Loving the polyamorous life

There’s no reliable data showing how many people practice polyamory, leaders in the poly community say, but they say there has been a boom in people seeking information about the lifestyle.

“Fifty percent of people checking it out actually become interested, and the other 50 percent decide it’s just not for them,” said Robyn Trask, executive director of Loving More, a Colorado-based magazine for the poly community.

Loving More has 1,500 subscribers to the magazine and 15,000 people in its database, which includes people who have attended polyamory conferences, Trask said.

Of the eight or nine polyamory retreats and conferences held in the U.S. each year, the largest is the PolyLiving Conference outside Philadelphia, which drew 120 people this spring, Trask said. The first Chicago Polyamory Conference was scheduled for this year, but it was canceled because of low registration.

Since 2005, a Chicago woman who goes by Cunning Minx has hosted a weekly podcast about her adventures in polyamory (polyweekly.com). There are two active polyamory Meetup groups in the area—an 8-month-old Chicago group has 127 members and a 3-year-old Fox Valley group has 38—and a polyamory book club meets monthly. The PolyChi Yahoo! Group, founded in the late ’90s, has more than 1,000 members and hosts a monthly PolyKaraoke night at Sidekicks, a karaoke lounge in Irving Park. ALEXIA ELEJALDE-RUIZ even if they’re transparent, there’s a high risk that one partner will feel security is threatened.

“Anyone I’ve come across who wants to have multiple partners or multiple relationships, somebody is feeling burned by that,” Hetherington said.

Young couples who have higher sex drives might be able to sustain polyamorous relationships for a while, but eventually jealousy “gets to be corrosive on the [primary] relationship,” and they return to monogamy, said Lonnie Barbach, author of “Erotic Edge” and a psychologist on the clinical faculty of the University of California Medical Center.

But just because monogamy works for most people doesn’t mean it works for everyone, said therapist David Rodemaker, who runs Many Loves, a workshop that meets monthly at the Center on Halsted for people practicing or interested in consensual nonmonogamy.

Though he doesn’t endorse one lifestyle over another, Rodemaker said he said he has known people who have sustained successful polyamorous relationships for years. The Polyamory, a term coined in the early '90s to describe a lifestyle of being involved in multiple loving relationships at once, is perhaps best defined by what it is not.

Poly lingo

It is not swinging, which emphasizes sex without love. It is not an orgy, which is group sex. And it is not cheating, as a central tenet of polyamory is to be honest and transparent about all your relationships.

There are endless permutations of polyamory, and every relationship has its own rules.

Here's a peek at some poly terminology.

Triad

A relationship involving three partners.

Vee

A type of triad in which one person (the "hinge" of the "V") has a stronger relationship with two of the partners than they have with each other.

Quad

A four-person relationship.

Compersion

(also known as "frubble")

"Feeling joy in the joy that others you love share among themselves, especially taking joy in the knowledge that your beloveds are expressing their love for one another," according to the Web site for the Colorado-based polyamory magazine Loving More (lovemore.com).

Polyvangelist

A person who thinks polyamory is the best lovestyle (another term) and tries to convert the monogamous.

Polyfidelity

A group of partners in which everyone is faithful to one another; group marriage (think "Big Love," but with women also able to have multiple partners).

Spice

Plural of "spouse."

ALEXIA ELEJALDE-QUIZ

eight to 10 people who show up at the Many Loves sessions discuss "the same kind of stuff that comes up during couples counseling," he said, including jealousy.

For example, Prather said he feels jealous when he feels he's not spending enough time with Bennett. So they devised a schedule, with Bennett spending alternating weekends with Prather and Kumar.

To regulate their outside relationships, the trio abides by sets of rules: They use protection, and each person tells the others of new partners "within a reasonable time frame." Bennett also declared that Prather and Kumar have veto power over her partners if they don't pick up a good vibe. And Prather stipulates that Bennett must enjoy herself, because "otherwise, what's the point?"

Bennett, a former serial monogamist who bounced from one committed relationship to the next, said she'd "never felt inclined to" monogamy. Cheating was a problem in relationships, but what bothered her most was the lying.

"I preferred honesty over whether or not they were actually being faithful," said Bennett, who was introduced to polyamory by Prather, who'd had a history of open relationships.

Bennett added: "The hardest part was getting used to the fact that it was OK."

Social stigma is another big challenge. People have lost custody of their children or their jobs because of their lifestyle.

Lissa Melton of Aurora, one of the organizers of the Fox Valley Polyamory Meetup group, said she joined another Meetup group recently in hopes of participating in their game nights and finding playmates for her 2-year-old son. A few days later, she got a note from the organizer saying that her affiliation with polyamory made others uncomfortable. She was removed from the group.

"It isn't the first time that I have wondered about being open about my lifestyle choices, but one of the things we value is honesty," said Melton, 33, who has been married for 13 years and polyamorous for seven.

To many, multiple partners may seem like more trouble than they're worth. But Prather said Kumar brings important elements to his marriage: a different point of view, a companion for Bennett, and another person to turn to in hard times.

"He's like family; he's on our emergency contact list," Prather said.

And if Bennett and Kumar broke up?

"I'd be heartbroken," Prather said.

The beach is back!

Chicago beaches reopened for swimming Sunday, but there is still a swim advisory for Oak Street and Montrose beaches. The advisory means that there were “low to moderate” traces of E. coli bacteria found in the waters off those beaches. That amount could be harmful to small children, the elderly or individuals with compromised immune systems. Swimming will be allowed at those beaches. All other city beaches are open.

Power almost restored

Commonwealth Edison has almost finished reconnecting all of its Chicagoland electric customers after Friday's storms. Jeff Burdick, a spokesman for the electric company, said that about 250 customers in the Chicago area were still without power Sunday night. About 245,000 customers suffered some outages thanks to the storms that blew through the area Friday and Saturday, Burdick said.

Man struck by 2 cars, killed

A Chicago man died Saturday in Michigan City, Ind., after being struck by two different vehicles early Saturday morning when he was walking to a gas station, according to officials. Christopher Chiles, 25, was walking to a gas station from a nearby apartment building when he was struck, LaPorte County Chief Deputy Coroner Mark Huffman said.

1 stabbed at fight near festival

At least one man was stabbed during an altercation near the Fiesta Puertorriquenas festival in Humboldt Park on Saturday night, officials said. A 25-year-old man was stabbed in the park near West Evergreen and North California Avenues about 8:30 p.m., said Fire Department spokesman Quention Curtis.

Man hits 2 cop cars

A Chicago man was issued four traffic citations after running a red light and hitting two on-duty police squad cars in Albany Park on Sunday morning, according to Chicago Police. The man, 45, was driving an SUV east on Irving Park Road when he failed to stop at the red light at Kimball, Chicago Police News Affairs Officer Michael Fitzpatrick said. The two police officers were injured, but the SUV driver wasn't. All three drivers were wearing seat belts.

Easy credit card payments, mapping software could change cab experience

Chicago Tribune

The refusal of some Chicago taxicab drivers to accept credit cards leads to hundreds of complaints to city officials each year, ranking third behind reckless driving and rude behavior, records show.

The aversion to plastic among cab drivers is actually the No. 1 complaint they receive, taxi industry executives say. “The biggest thing I’ve heard from the public is the driver doesn’t want to accept credit cards,” said Jeffrey Feldman, president of Taxi Medallion Management, LLC.

But now, officials hope new touch-screen equipment being installed in the back seats of up to 2,600 Chicago taxicabs will help address the problem.

The devices give passengers the option to swipe credit or debit cards instead of handing over the cards, or cash, to the driver.

The TV-like screen presents a running tab during the trip and at the end of the ride an itemized bill generated by the cab meter, including any surcharges and tolls. It also lets customers add a tip onto their charge card.

MORE TO COME

About 30 Chicago taxis are equipped with the touch-screen payment method. Starting in July, the devices will be installed in about 760 Yellow, Checker Taxi and Blue Diamond Taxi cabs managed by Taxi Medallion Management, said President Jeffrey Feldman. Plans call for expanding the program to cover all the 2,600 taxis in the Yellow fleet, he said. There are about 6,700 registered taxis in Chicago.

The screen displays suggested gratuities corresponding to rates of 15 percent, 20 percent and 25 percent. The customer also can use a keypad to enter a different tip amount, or provide a cash tip if desired.

The technology will likely take away a ploy carried out by unscrupulous drivers—a minority among the city’s 15,000 taxi drivers—who pretend the credit-card processing machine in the front of their cab is broken.

There’s another benefit to the back seat displays. The touch-screen computers, equipped with Google Maps software, enable passengers to monitor their trip. The mapping system lays down “bread crumbs” that track each cab trip.

It can be used as a navigation tool by passengers, making it obvious if a cabbie takes a longer route just to inflate the fare. The trick falls under the heading of cab overcharges, which generated more than 600 complaints to the city in 2008.

Chicago taxi drivers have been required to accept credit or debit card payments for years, although Norma Reyes said the rule was not tightly enforced until she was appointed commissioner in 2004 of the Chicago Department of Business Affairs and Consumer Protection, which regulates the taxicab industry in Chicago.

Veteran taxi driver Wale Ajose said he likes the back seat technology because it helps minimize disputes with customers.

However, Ajose said he does worry that more customers will switch from cash to credit cards, which will affect his earnings because of the 5 percent service charge the credit card companies impose.

Bee-utiful

6 CHEYENNE, Wyo. It took Michael Petrino Jr. 51 years to finally win a national spelling bee. The Arlington, Va., man bested 45 other spellers older than 50 to win the AARP's annual National Spelling Bee Saturday in Cheyenne. The 64-year-old's winning word was "woad," a plant whose leaves yield a blue dye.

Media kept quiet about journalist's kidnapping

7 NEW YORK The decision not to report initially on reporter David Rohde's capture by the Taliban for seven months was "agonizing," New York Times executive editor Bill Keller said Sunday.

"All along, we were told by people that probably the wisest course for David's safety was to keep it quiet," Keller said in an interview on CNN.

The Times reported Saturday that Rohde escaped from seven months in captivity in Afghanistan and Pakistan by climbing over a wall on Friday.

New York Times executive editor Bill Keller said there were times he worried the story of reporter David Rohde's kidnapping would be leaked, such as in May when Rohde was part of the team that won a Pulitzer Prize for coverage of Afghanistan and Pakistan.

Rohde was abducted Nov. 10 along with an Afghan reporter and a driver south of the Afghan capital of Kabul. The Times kept the kidnapping quiet out of concern for the men's safety, and other media outlets, including The Associated Press, followed suit at the Times' request.

"It was an agonizing position that we revisited over and over again," Keller said in the CNN interview with Washington Post media critic Howard Kurtz.

"But I also have a responsibility for the people who work for me. I send a lot of people out into dangerous places and their security is also part of my job."

Hard-luck pitcher earns first major-league win to secure sweep of Indians

Associated Press

His nerves frayed and his stomach twisting like a wicked curve, Randy Wells couldn't bear to watch so he stayed in the weight room.

Finally, with one out left, he came back out. Then, he got the shaving-cream treatment. And the beer shower.

His first major-league win certainly was something to see.

Wells (1-3) pitched into the seventh inning, Geovany Soto homered and Jake Fox drove in three runs to lead the Cubs to a 6-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians Sunday and their fourth straight win.

Derrek Lee extended his hitting streak to 18 games with an RBI single, tying a career high, and the Cubs cruised to an easy win after taking the previous three in their final at-bat.

"It was pretty nerve-racking," he said. "I

Randy's odyssey

Cubs pitcher Randy Wells finally has a "W." Here's how he fared in his previous starts.

May 8: Five innings, 5 hits and no runs. Aaron Heilman gives up two runs in the 8th in a 3-2 loss.

May 16: Pitches a scoreless six innings, but closer Kevin Gregg gives up four in the ninth. Cubs win in last at-bat.

May 23: He gives up just one run, striking out 7, but Cubs can't give him a win in 2-1 loss.

May 28: Goes 7 innings, strikes out 7, allows 2 runs but gets second loss as offense scores just 1.

June 2: One earned run in 7 innings, but Carlos Marmol and Gregg allow the Braves to tie it at 5. Braves win in 12.

June 7: 6.2 innings pitched, 2 earned runs, 4 strikeouts. No W.

June 12: Gets his third loss as he is shelled by Minnesota.

tried to stay in the weight room for most of it. I wanted to be out there for the last out."

Wells allowed two runs and five hits in 6 2-3 innings.

He left to a loud ovation with a 6-1 lead after getting knocked out in the fourth against Minnesota nine days earlier. Now, he finally has a win after posting a 2.55 ERA in his first seven starts following his call-up from Triple-A Iowa last month.

"You dream about winning ballgames in the big leagues," Wells said. "It's been a long time coming."

WATCH Cubs at Atlanta

6:10 p.m.
Monday, CSN

The White Sox are off, so this is the only game in town Monday. Well, not technically in town, as this is a road game, but you can watch it in town, or anywhere you can get CSN for that matter. Oh, just watch. The Cubs are heating up.

WATCH The Superstars

7 p.m. Tuesday, ABC

T.O. and Co. update the '70s classic: Eight celebs are paired with eight athletes. In the premiere, the teams compete in a bike race — with one bike. Hopefully Bode Miller is sober when he saddles up.

PLAY Fight Night 4

In stores Thursday.

Ever wanted to see Muhammad Ali fight Mike Tyson? You can make it happen with this game for Xbox 360 or PlayStation 3. The graphics are so lifelike, Tyson might actually be able to bite off a piece of your ear, so play at your own risk.

ATTEND White Sox vs. Cubs

3:05 p.m. Friday, U.S. Cellular Field

It's the Crosstown Classic. At the Cell. Friday afternoon. You leave work early. It's sold out, you say? With scalpers and online ticket brokers, nothing is ever sold out anymore.

ATTEND Fire vs. Tigres UANL

7 p.m. Saturday, Toyota Park, Bridgeview

This game is part of the SuperLiga tournament, which pits the best of U.S. soccer teams vs. the best of Mexican soccer teams. This year's winner takes home more than $1 million (say this in your best Dr. Evil voice).

1 How could Kerry Wood's return to Wrigley Field have been any worse?	On his last pitch his elbow could have fallen off.	He could have been sent to Chicago ... in 2003.	He could have gotten locked in a bathroom stall at Wrigley—actually, that would have been better for fans.	If he had spontaneously combusted. It was pretty strange to see the ex-Cub Factor work in their favor.	He had two saves for the Cubs over the weekend. He had worse weekends last year.
2 Paul Konerko hit his 1,000th RBI Sunday. What have you done 1,000 times?	Wish I was good enough at baseball to have even one RBI.	Eat 1,000 ribs in his honor. Urp.	Answered the Five on Five questions for you.	Well ... my Mom told me I'd go blind from it.	Used 1,000 quarters to fill a parking meter. I got 48 minutes!
3 Who is Ricky Barnes?	We made a fortune robbing gas stations together during the '70s.	The ironically illiterate cousin of the Barnes of Barnes & Noble.	I think he's a porn star from the early '80s.	Captain America's teenage sidekick from WW2!	I know he's NOT Tiger Woods, therefore I'm NOT watching golf.
4 Wimbledon opens today. How are you marking the occasion?	English-made bourbon and grass-flavored hookers.	I've been going around speaking in a British accent. Now what's this about Wimbledon?	I'm yelling in a British accent "15-love" to everyone I see.	Making my signature drink, "Bjorn Borgs": vermouth and vodka, very dry.	Buy my "Ozzie mows Wimbledon" T-shirt. Honestly, can we stop dumb shirts around Wrigley?
5 Who's the best father in sports?	Rev. Marc Silverman.	Who's your daddy?	Muhammad Ali. He is the greatest, right?	Kobe Bryant, who's been the best family man since ... y'know.	Super Dad Tom Waddle. He's responsible for five kids ... four daughters and one immature co-host!

WHITE SOX 4, CINCINNATI 1

Youngsters step up

CINCINNATI Manager Ozzie Guillen doesn't see any imminent trades for the White Sox. He's preaching patience as his young players overcome growing pains while veterans recover from injuries.

The youngsters fulfilled their complementary roles Sunday to support seven shutout innings by Mark Buehrle, enabling the Sox to coast to a 4-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

The Sox (33-36) went 5-3 during an eight-game stretch in National League parks without the full-time services of designated hitter Jim Thome and with fellow slugger Jermaine Dye limited by a strained left calf.

"I'm happy the way we finished without those guys in the lineup," Guillen said. "Hopefully now with Thome back in the lineup, we'll be stronger. When you have the DH, every lineup will be stronger, and we can take advantage of that."

Rookie third baseman Gordon Beckham was 8-for-27 (.296) in the eight games. He walked in the ninth inning Sunday and scored on Dewayne Wise's double.

Fellow rookie Chris Getz had his six-game hitting streak snapped, but he made a diving stop to retire Jay Bruce for the final out of the fourth.

"When I got here, I struggled," said Beckham, now hitting .196. "You take those first 13 at-bats (in which he went hitless), and it's not too bad."

It's a dark end at Bethpage Black

FARMINGDALE, N.Y. Halfway through his third round, Ricky Barnes had a six-shot lead and a smile to match in the U.S. Open. Ten holes later, with darkness gathering, he couldn't get off Bethpage Black fast enough.

The final few hours Sunday changed everything in a start-and-stop U.S. Open headed for a Monday finish.

Barnes became only the fourth player to reach double digits under par, reaching minus 11 in the third round, but had to settle for an even-par 70 and a one-shot lead over Lucas Glover.

In the one hole he completed in the fourth round, Barnes chopped his way to a bogey and fell into a tie. He followed that by hooking his tee shot into gnarly clumps of native grass on a hill left of the second fairway, putting him in more trouble.

When the horn sounded to suspend the final round because of darkness, he quickly marked his ball and headed for the clubhouse.

Barnes and Glover were at 7 under par, still five shots clear of everyone else.

Neither of them has ever faced major championship pressure—Glover had never even made the cut

TIGER'S BRIGHT DAY

Tiger Woods at least left Bethpage Black in good spirits. Having squandered so many birdie chances over the last two days, Woods made an eight-foot birdie on the 489-yard seventh hole to get back to even par for the tournament for the first time since his 14th hole in the opening round. Woods was 15 shots behind at one point Saturday, but he walked off the course seven shots back with 12 holes to play. "It was nice to end the day with a birdie on one of the most difficult holes of the week," Woods said.

in a U.S. Open before—and they still had a long way to go. "It's going to be pressure-packed [Monday]," Glover said. "I'll sleep fine. If not, I guess I'll be tired."

Phil Mickelson made seven birdies in his third round of 69 that left him six shots behind. He has been the runner-up four times in the U.S. Open—three times in New York—and is desperate to bring a silver trophy of cheer home to a wife who is battling breast cancer.

"I'm one good round away," Mickelson said, excited at the possibilities.

Ryan Howard was released from the hospital Sunday but did not play for the Philadelphia Phillies against Baltimore, ending his consecutive games streak at 343.

» On the verge of elimination, the U.S. soccer team came up with its best performance in seven years Sunday, beating Egypt 3-0.

THE DIGIT 145

Number of times Atlanta manager Bobby Cox has been ejected from a game, a major-league record. He was ejected in Sunday's game vs. Boston.

» Boston 2, Red Stars 0 » Yankees pitcher CC Sabathia leaves game Sunday with injury. » Dario Franchitti wins Sunday's Iowa Corn Indy 250.

G'day, mate!

Megan Grant
DAN PETERSON FOR METROMIX

There's nowhere this Leone Beach guard would rather spend her summers ... except maybe Australia

By M. Kathleen Pratt

Some kids go to summer camp to roast marshmallows. Megan Grant, an Albany Park resident who grew up in Andersonville, went to camp to practice CPR. Before becoming a lifeguard, she spent several years in the junior guard program at Leone Park and Beach on Chicago's North Side, where she learned rowing, paddleboarding and other rescue skills.

"When I was a kid, that was like my camp," she says.

Now just a step away from captain, Grant still spends her summers on the sand. You'll find her at Leone Beach, a stretch that covers the lakefront from Juneway Terrace to Farwell Avenue, including a main beach at Touhy Avenue as well as smaller street-end beaches.

LIFEGUARD VITALS

Name: Megan Grant, 19

Beach: Leone Park and Beach, 7032 N. Lakefront, Touhy Avenue at Lake Michigan

Title: Mate

Experience: 4 years, plus junior guard training

In her beach bag: Maui Babe tanning lotion ("just in case")

Favorite beach movie: "Step into Liquid"

So what's the crowd like at Leone Beach?

We have four beaches north of us that are all street ends, so we get a lot of people from Rogers Park. ... They usually live in the apartment buildings around the beaches. A lot of times we'll get kids who aren't in camp or anything during the day so they just come down with their siblings to the beach. ... It's a pretty diverse neighborhood.

The weather hasn't been so hot lately. How do lifeguards entertain themselves when no one's around?

We find ways. ... We actually have a floor hockey tournament going on between the lifeguards when they're on their breaks.

Floor hockey? Do you have a beach house or something?

Yeah. Our beach house is one of the oldest buildings on the lakefront, actually. It used to be a pumping station for the village of Rogers Park. So we have a really nice beach house compared to some of the other beaches that have, like, trailers.

Do you think the other guards are jealous of your sweet beach house?

Not really ... but when people get transferred here, they're always sort of surprised that we have so much space.

If you could give your beachgoers a piece of unsolicited advice, what would it be?

We have a sandbar at some of our beaches, and we try to keep people off of it because once they get to it, they never want to come back in. It's really frustrating because little kids don't understand that it gets deeper before it gets shallow.

Have you ever had to go out there and get someone off of it?

Yeah, they don't really like that. It's happened a few times.

Do you get a lot of people coming up to you and bugging you with questions?

Most people's questions have to do with the rules. ... We have a lot of [regulars who] think they're, like, the best swimmers in the world. And they don't understand why they can't swim out to the buoy. ... It doesn't matter how good of a swimmer you are. You have to obey the rules.

Do you have a favorite beach?

I do! Jarvis. [Muffled sounds in background] ... I'm being told that Jarvis sucks.

Don't listen to them. Tell me why Jarvis is the best.

It has the least rocks. We have natural sand, so it's all mostly rocks, and [Jarvis is] the least rocky and has a nice little park.

Where would you work if you could be a lifeguard anywhere in the world?

Ooh. Probably Australia. They have pretty bad-ass lifeguards.

What are the qualifications for a bad-ass lifeguard, exactly?

Being very good at your job, I guess. And they're all super buff.

Boyle-mania

'America's Got Talent' banking on unlikely star to boost series

NBC's "America's Got Talent" is looking to find its own version of the 48-year-old Scottish singing sensation Susan Boyle. AP FILE

Nick Cannon is the new host of "America's Got Talent."

Los Angeles Times

This season, the most important contestant for "America's Got Talent" isn't competing on the show. She doesn't even live in America.

Susan Boyle is the frumpy, 48-year-old Scottish singer who rocketed to international celebrity after surprising judges with her assured performance this spring on "Britain's Got Talent." Now the question is whether Boyle-mania will boost the popularity of "America's Got Talent," NBC's sister program that starts its fourth season at 8 p.m. Tuesday. The American and British versions are made by the same company, FremantleMedia.

Executives already are counting on Boyle, who was the eventual runner-up on "Britain's Got Talent." One NBC promo starts with a shot of her singing on the British show—a video seen by tens of millions of viewers online—while a voice-over says, "This June, the international sensation comes home to America." Viewers might need a second or two to register that the "sensation" being referred to is the "Got Talent" format, not Boyle.

Calling her "the television equivalent of Viagra," Piers Morgan, a judge on both the British and American versions of "Got Talent," says the producers are giving "serious consideration" to having Boyle appear in some fashion on the U.S. show.

"In terms of the potential effect she could have on ratings, the British show jumped nearly 50 percent because of Susan," Morgan said in an interview. "And I believe the American show could do the same."

NBC's Season 3 premiere drew 12.9 million total viewers, according to Nielsen Media Research. Simon Cowell, the "American Idol" judge who created the "Got Talent" format, told reporters in April that the show was a "sleeping giant" and that Boyle could help the program double or triple its ratings this season.

But some analysts are skeptical about whether "America's Got Talent" will see any long-term benefit from Boyle, a shy woman who stunned judges with her powerful voice. Whether the show can find American contestants with similarly compelling back stories is an open question. In its first three seasons, none of the "America's Got Talent" contestants sparked anything even close to Boyle's popularity.

The American show's previous winners—teen crooner Bianca Ryan, ventriloquist Terry Fator and operatic insurance salesman Neal E. Boyd—haven't become household names in the vein of Boyle after winning the $1 million prize.

"It would be great to have a Susan Boyle," said David Hasselhoff, who shares judging duties with Morgan and Sharon Osbourne. "I think it's a wonderful story. I think it's great story because that story brings us together. It shows us we're stuck up, judgmental and sometimes full of ourselves. She comes out there, appreciative to be there, and sings just about better than anyone on Earth."

America's got Susan?

"America's Got Talent" producers have scoured the country for their own Susan Boyle. They auditioned hopefuls in Boston, New York, Miami, Chicago, Houston, Seattle and L.A., had an open call on the "Today" show for a wild-card contestant and also accepted submissions via the Internet.

Among the acts the judges have seen so far this season that may reach Susan Boyle status stateside:

- » A trio of siblings called Voices of Glory who serenaded their comatose mother;
- » An impressive singer who said she was turned away from auditioning for a cruise line because of her appearance;
- » A chicken farmer who clucked one mean Garth Brooks tune. AP

The program has a new host, actor and rapper Nick Cannon, who "brings a whole new vibe to the show," according to Morgan. Jerry Springer, the previous host, announced earlier this year he would leave to pursue other projects.

But all of that would pale beside any appearances Boyle, who ultimately lost "Britain's Got Talent" to the dance group Diversity, might make on the show.

"When I die," Morgan said, "the headline will be: Man Who Was In Susan Boyle's YouTube Clip Dies at Age 97." AP CONTRIBUTED.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY CANCER

June 22-July 22
Two planets are bringing you a groovy feeling. Whatever is happening in your personal life, you know that it's meant to be. You're letting go of any agenda. You're following your guru's advice and acting all Zen about love.

Leo

July 23-Aug. 22

Venus is reminding you to listen to your friends. If your roommate warns you not to date that convicted felon, pay attention. Or if your oldest buddy says he has a bad feeling about that girl you're obsessed with, he might be onto something.

Virgo

Aug. 23-Sept. 22

You're very focused on work. There's nothing wrong with bringing home a paycheck, but Saturn is reminding you not to go to extremes. Don't neglect that significant other who requires regular romps in the bedroom.

Libra

Sept. 23-Oct. 23

A relationship could have an on-again, off-again feeling. The moon has you questioning whether the two of you are compatible. Maybe she doesn't get along with your pit bull or he hates your incredibly charming, not pushy (no matter what he thinks) mother.

Scorpio

Oct. 24-Nov. 21

A quirky new moon has you looking at love in a new way. If you've been trying to change your partner, stop it and see what happens. Or if you were planning a wedding, don't push so hard to set a date in the near future.

Sagittarius

Nov. 22-Dec. 21

Playful Jupiter has you in a rowdy mood. You want to get wild with someone right now. If you're single, you could find yourself calling up a former flame and proposing a friends-with-benefits scenario. If you're partnered, you could stage an explosive encounter.

Capricorn

Dec. 22-Jan. 19

It won't be hard to seduce and amaze others, thanks to a friendly moon. You could discover that a neighbor has the hots for you or a co-worker is dying to get to know you better. Meanwhile, someone you once chased after might suddenly notice that you're alive.

Aquarius

Jan. 20-Feb. 18

You're master of the casual relationship. It's easy for you to have fun with multiple partners without getting too emotionally involved. But with the moon opposite your sign, someone you've been close to might want a committed relationship instead of just a fling.

Pisces

Feb. 19-March 20

Trust those psychic instincts. The sun is amping up your intuitive powers. If you sense that your partner needs coddling, cook a wonderful dinner, light some candles and get ready to be a great listener. Provide your own form of intimate therapy for your honey.

Aries

March 21-April 19

You're changing the rules of a relationship. If your partner is usually in charge, now you want to be the boss. Or if you're the one who always pays for dinner, you'll demand that your honey treats you. Mars has you shifting gears and making power plays.

Taurus

April 20-May 20

Venus in your sign means that your love life is making more sense. If you're with someone, you're feeling pretty great about it. If you're single, you're enjoying meeting new people and celebrating your unattached state.

Gemini

May 21-June 21

You're eager to shake things up in the bedroom. Neptune is reminding you that it's time to try something new to keep your relationship interesting. Spring some role-playing on your partner and try a fresh seduction technique.

ABSOLUTELY ADAM

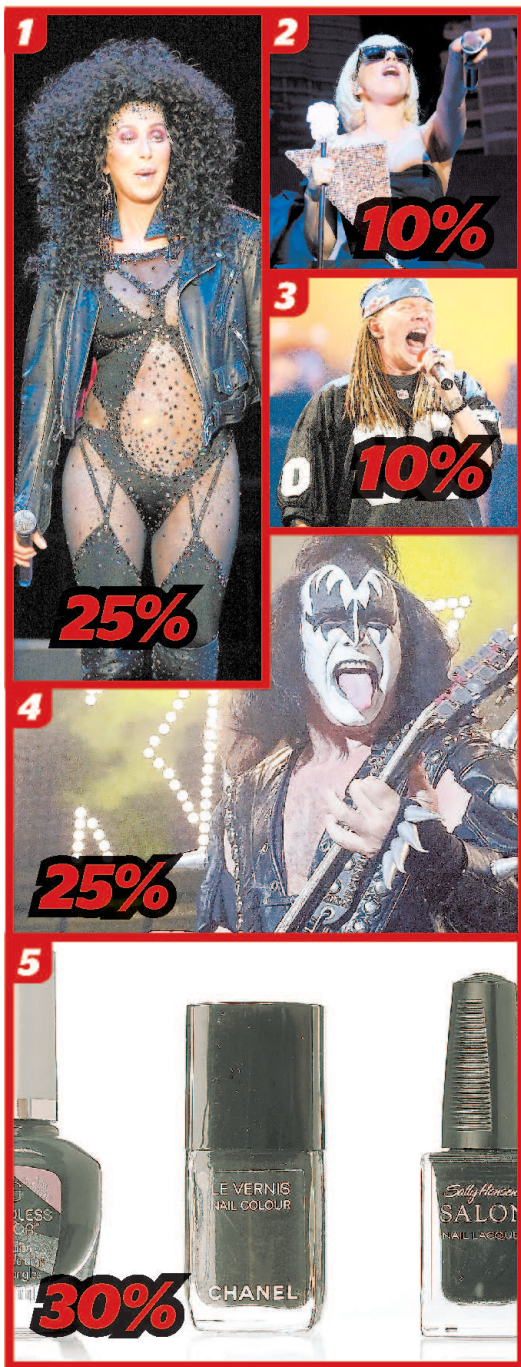

What will a Lambert album sound like?

Sounds like you're going to be hearing from Adam Lambert a lot sooner than expected.

An album of songs recorded by Lambert before his rise on the show will be released by Hi Fi Recordings and Wilshire Records this summer, beginning with the single "Want," The Associated Press reports. The tracks reportedly were recorded in 2007 and 2008, and the album will be titled "On with the Show."

The project is separate from anything he's doing with 19 Entertainment and RCA Recordings, with whom Lambert inked a deal earlier this month after losing to Kris Allen in the "Idol" finale.

But what will it sound like? Red-Eye took a stab at guessing Lambert's inspiration.

ABEL URIBE/TRIBUNE

The (bad) boys are back in town

Several of Hollywood's bad boys descended on Chicago over the weekend.

Johnny Depp and Christian Bale flew to Chicago for the premiere of gangster flick "Public Enemies" at the AMC River East 21 on Thursday night. Bale, who has made headlines for his hot-headedness, laid low with his wife, Sibi. They walked the red carpet for the premiere and hit up the official premiere party at the River East Center.

Depp, not so much.

After making a quick appearance at the flick's official party, Johnny went to Gibsons for a private late-night bash held in the party room.

Depp, who speaks French, spent most of the night chatting up his French co-star, Marion Cotillard, over some wine. Depp and Cotillard closed down the hot spot and left in an SUV together.

Meanwhile, Vince Vaughn popped up on the scene Friday night with his fiancée, Kyla Weber. They bar hopped from the rooftop at The Wit hotel to Stay.

On Saturday, the couple kept the party going by attending the Cubs game. Vaughn later met up with Depp at the Peninsula Hotel. A source tells this column they met in London and have been friends ever since.

Finally, Jeremy Piven also partied it up in Chicago over the weekend hitting up the Cubs game Saturday and then heading to Rockit for his annual Piven Theatre Workshop Benefit with mom Joyce.

Piven auctioned off a walk-on role on "Entourage" for $40,000.

SIGHTINGS

» Derrek Lee dined at Carnivale on Wednesday night. » Marion Cotillard shopped at the Michigan Avenue Borders on Wednesday night. » Jeremy Piven dined at Sunda on Friday night. » The cast and crew for "A Nightmare On Elm Street" including Jackie Earle Haley, who plays Freddy Krueger, celebrated their wrap party at RiNo on Saturday night with famous friends including Jordana Brewster and Brian Urlacher.

We prefer white teeth over white knuckles too.

If going to the dentist has always been a white knuckle experience for you, then consider Chicago Smile Design. We work with our patients to find out the best way to help them relax through their dental appointments. For some it's as simple as taking a little pill so all of their dental needs can be taken care of in one appointment.

So give us a call and leave the white knuckle experience for the roller coasters and cab rides.

SUFFERING FROM FREQUENT

MIGRAINE

HEADACHES?

If so, an investigational preventative medicine for frequent migraine headaches is in development.

This medicine is currently being tested to see if it lowers the number of migraines you have and how severe the attacks are. We are enrolling patients now for this clinical research study.

You may be eligible if you:

- Are 18 years of age or older.
- Suffer from at least 3 migraine headaches per month.

Study participants receive:

- Study-related testing.
- Monitoring by health care professionals.
- Study visits and study-related health care at no cost.
- Possible compensation for time and travel.

How does Jon Gosselin spend Father's Day? Talking to reporters. When asked, the "Jon & Kate Plus 8" personality said he had "no idea" where his wife was and refused to answer questions about speculation of a divorce, according to usmagazine.com. TLC is airing a special one-hour episode Monday that has been promising an announcement about "life-changing" decisions the embattled couple have made. It features Kate Gosselin saying, "It doesn't matter where Jon and I are in our relationship. My kids still matter the most to me." TLC has kept mum about the content of the episode. Stay tuned.

'Idol' visit

Is Chicago home to the next "American Idol?" Today is the day to find out as the United Center is hosting auditions for Fox's reality juggernaut. Registration for the event was Saturday and Sunday, and singing hopefuls were expected to be lining up in the wee hours of the morning Monday on the Near West Side.

THE VELVET ROPE

Milk and cheese

It was the milk all along! A new campaign for the delectable dairy drink features Usher, who is going through a divorce with wife Tameka Foster Raymond, with text that says milk helps him "stay in tune" and keeps him fit. His advice? "Eat right, exercise and grab a glass of ice-cold milk. Now that's chill."

Dancing queen?

Sounds like Katie Holmes actually does think she can dance. E! News is citing an on-set source as saying she will appear on the final episode of "So You Think You Can Dance" on Aug. 6. Rumors have swirled this month about an appearance, but reps for the show and Holmes have declined to comment.

Holmes

Mercy and Madonna

Madonna's adopted daughter Mercy was on a plane from Malawi to London this weekend, according to a report from The Associated Press. The AP said the 3-year-old, over whom the Material Girl had recently sparred with courts in the southern Africa country where she does charity work, boarded a private jet to the U.K. on Friday.

THE DIGIT

$34.1 million

Movie audiences this weekend accepted a proposal from Sandra Bullock and Ryan Reynolds, whose romantic comedy "The Proposal" raked in $34.1 million to open at the top of the box office.
